Dear Families,

In addition to the Home School Connection Packets, below we have provided a list of free websites to engage your child in different activities to support their learning. We believe that educational sites with the right content can help your child develop effective processing skills. However, it is essential to limit your child's screen time to no more than two hours a day. In addition, when your child watches or plays on a screen, please feel free to play along with them. Studies show that toddlers and preschoolers learn more from screen media when their parents watch with them. Many of these sites offer not only homeschool resources, but plenty of engaging fun activities.
